Benjamin Goodson - Musical Director, Henley Choral Society

Benjamin is Director of Chapel Music at Somerville College, Oxford. He is musical director of the award-winning Bath Camerata, the Lea Singers chamber choir, Henley Choral Society and Youth Choirs, and was recently appointed chorus master at Dorset Opera Festival. Upcoming engagements span choral, orchestral and operatic repertoire from the 16th century to the present day. Recently Benjamin's work has focused especially on eighteenth-century choral music, in particular the vocal music of J.S. Bach. Whatever the repertoire, the desire to present old and new music in engaging ways informs all that he does. Educated at Hertford College, Oxford, Benjamin won Oxford University's most coveted conducting prize. He has studied conducting with Paul Spicer (Finzi Singers), Peter Stark (RCM), Colin Metters (RAM), Neil Thomson and John Farrer (LCW), and Ulrich Windfuhr (Hochschule für Musik und Theater Hamburg).

'Unequivocally one of the most naturally gifted conductors I have encountered'

Paul Spicer, Professor of Choral Conducting, Birmingham Conservatoire

David Smith - Accompanist

David Smith completed a Postgraduate Diploma in piano accompaniment at the Royal Academy of Music, studying with Michael Dussek and Vanessa Latache, and subsequently won the Shinn fellowship. He is in great demand as a partner of many young leading singers and instrumentalists, and has performed in venues such as the Wigmore Hall, St John Smith Square and Bath Pump Rooms. David's many competition successes include reaching the final of the Birmingham Accompanist of the Year, the Vivian Langrish Accompanist Prize, the Michael Head and Bliss Prizes. His versatility has led him to work as an orchestral pianist with the Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra, a répétiteur with Holland Park Opera and rehearsal pianist with the BBC Symphony Chorus and London Oriana Choir.

Henley Choral Society
